One of the oldest Iranian carpet designs in this design and style, called Mohramate

Product code #IR11

About The Carpet:

One of the oldest Iranian carpet designs in this design and style, called Mohramate, was so common in ancient Iran that more than two-thirds carpets and curtains painted in the latest version oldest in the Iranian art book were made in this style. A carpet woven from memory, without cardboard, by a nomadic woman, a magical and colorful masterpiece of multiple bird and animal motifs, but also of sacred and varied flowers. Hedges of trees remind us of the Tree of Life, eternal life, intelligence, and truth, alternating with the cedar which was also used in massages, and the cypress symbol of life after death. The peacocks, symbols of divine protection, in the center of the carpet ward off evil and the devil, while cranes and goats speak to us of rain, peace and faith. The rooster is a symbol of luck, and pets are symbols of blessing, fertility and posterity. The sun bathes the world in its radiant light of life. A sublime rug-talisman full of positive energy, hand-woven from silk and wool by a nomadic weaver artist from North Khorassan.

Wild, beautiful, eye-catching, this is one of the oldest Iranian carpet designs. A legacy from the ages of nomadic life, with woven patterns of pets and birds in shimmering colors

Product code #IR12

About The Carpet:

Wild, beautiful, eye-catching, this is one of the oldest Iranian carpet designs. Imagine a weaving artist creating a work of art without cardboard in the virgin nature of Khorassan: she let her subconscious choose the colors and her heart fill in the lines!

This drawing, called Muharram, means prayer in the language of the Sassanian Empire (224 to 651 AD). In Persia, this motif was so popular that more than two-thirds of the clothes, carpets and curtains painted in the oldest version of the Iranian art book were created in this style. A legacy from the ages of nomadic life, with woven patterns of pets and birds in shimmering colors to attract supernatural forces, ward off the evil eye, receive goodness and blessings in nomadic life. This decor invites us on a terrestrial and celestial journey, the domestic animals send us back to the rhythm of present life and invite us to dominate our instincts as we can train our animals, while the birds invite us to fly to the skies. The idea of the bird-soul fallen into captivity and having lost consciousness of its pre-eternal state as the mystical stories tell us touches us... The profane and the sacred come together in the love of primordial and protective nature, to the rhythm of the seasons and the simple and beautiful life where the colors of the rainbow are as many bridges towards the divine Pakistani handmade carpets exude a sense of timeless elegance and intricate craftsmanship. Each rug is a testament to the rich cultural heritage of Pakistan, and the skill and dedication of the artisans who have honed their craft through generations of family tradition.

Bokhara

Bokhara carpets are a type of Pakistani handmade carpet that originated in Central Asia. They are known for their intricate geometric patterns that often feature repeated motifs, such as the gül (flower) and octagonal medallions.

Peshwar

Pakistani Peshawar carpets are known for their unique and beautiful design, which usually features geometric patterns and earthy colors. They are highly prized by collectors and enthusiasts alike for their intricate designs and excellent craftsmanship.

Kilim

Pakistani kilim carpets, also known as "gelims," are flat-woven carpets that are traditionally handwoven by tribal weavers. They are made using a tapestry technique, where weft threads are tightly woven across the warp threads to create a colorful and intricate pattern.

This Pakistani wool carpet not only adds aesthetic value to a space with its geometric shapes and floral motifs, but also provides practical benefits such as warmth, durability, and natural insulation due to the high quality wool used in its making.
